

Part 1: Background and evidence

Ticket scans take 1.61 seconds on the Pier 4 to Gull Island gate.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

64% of freight clerks miss the last sailing on Northgate to Saltmarsh.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

8% of commuters miss the last sailing on Old Quay to Heron Point.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Refund requests are down 42%, so the new policy is working.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 47% after the timetable change.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Ticket scans take 1.63 seconds on the Old Quay to Heron Point gate.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Ticket scans take 1.63 seconds on the Old Quay to Heron Point gate.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Refund requests are down 53%, so the new policy is working.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Ticket scans take 1.21 seconds on the Pier 4 to Gull Island gate.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Ticket scans take 1.68 seconds on the Pier 4 to Gull Island gate.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Refund requests are down 62%, so the new policy is working.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Ticket scans take 1.46 seconds on the Northgate to Saltmarsh gate.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Ticket scans take 1.58 seconds on the Pier 4 to Gull Island gate.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Ticket scans take 1.18 seconds on the Northgate to Saltmarsh gate.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

The Northgate to Saltmarsh service carried 2700 passengers last month.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Rival operators fill 64% more seats per sailing than we do.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

The Northgate to Saltmarsh service carried 6800 passengers last month.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

The Old Quay to Heron Point service carried 4300 passengers last month.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

26% of commuters miss the last sailing on Old Quay to Heron Point.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 68% after the timetable change.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 43% after the timetable change.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Ticket scans take 1.62 seconds on the Northgate to Saltmarsh gate.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Rival operators fill 50% more seats per sailing than we do.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Queue time at the Old Quay to Heron Point kiosk rose 17% after the timetable change.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

25% of island residents miss the last sailing on Old Quay to Heron Point.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Refund requests are down 62%, so the new policy is working.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

Ticket scans take 1.12 seconds on the Northgate to Saltmarsh gate.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

46% of island residents miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

35% of day visitors miss the last sailing on Old Quay to Heron Point.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Rival operators fill 52% more seats per sailing than we do.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Part 1: Customer needs

School parties need to board the Northgate to Saltmarsh ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Day visitors want a refund within a day of cancelling.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Day visitors want to know whether the Northgate to Saltmarsh sailing is delayed before leaving home.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Commuters need to board the Old Quay to Heron Point ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Commuters want to know whether the Pier 4 to Gull Island sailing is delayed before leaving home.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Island residents need to board the Pier 4 to Gull Island ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Day visitors need to board the Old Quay to Heron Point ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

School parties want to know whether the Northgate to Saltmarsh sailing is delayed before leaving home.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

School parties need to board the Old Quay to Heron Point ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Part 1: Target customers

Our target customers are adults aged 10 to 68 who travel by ferry.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Our target customers are adults aged 46 to 48 who travel by ferry.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Part 1: Stories

As a day visitors traveller, I want to be told of a delay so that I can rebook.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

As a commuters traveller, I want to buy a return ticket for Old Quay to Heron Point so that I can plan one trip.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

As a ticket inspector, I want to scan a code so that I can confirm a booking quickly.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

As a ticket inspector, I want to scan a code so that I can confirm a booking quickly.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

As a school parties traveller, I want to buy a return ticket for Northgate to Saltmarsh so that I can plan one trip.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

As an operator, I want to export sailings so that finance can reconcile them.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

As an operator, I want to export sailings so that finance can reconcile them.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

Part 1: Constraints and obligations

Tickets should feel instant.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

The service must meet the port authority's accessibility bylaw 4.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

The service must meet the port authority's accessibility bylaw 4.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

Part 1: Dependencies

Delivery depends on the harbour CCTV vendor, with no named owner yet.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Sam Okoro on the port authority's berth API will confirm the schedule feed by June.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Sam Okoro on the payments gateway team will confirm the schedule feed by June.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Part 1: Outlook

Once live, a QR ticket wallet will cut support calls by 40%.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Once live, a seat picker will cut support calls by 51%.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Launching a QR ticket wallet will double repeat bookings within a year.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Part 2: Background and evidence

12% of commuters miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

The Old Quay to Heron Point service carried 3200 passengers last month.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Rival operators fill 65% more seats per sailing than we do.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 39% after the timetable change.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 68% after the timetable change.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

Rival operators fill 49% more seats per sailing than we do.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Ticket scans take 1.24 seconds on the Northgate to Saltmarsh gate.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Refund requests are down 26%, so the new policy is working.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

43% of commuters miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

34% of day visitors miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

9% of commuters miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

57% of school parties miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Rival operators fill 35% more seats per sailing than we do.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

8% of island residents miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Refund requests are down 48%, so the new policy is working.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Refund requests are down 47%, so the new policy is working.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Ticket scans take 1.57 seconds on the Old Quay to Heron Point gate.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Refund requests are down 33%, so the new policy is working.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

40% of day visitors miss the last sailing on Northgate to Saltmarsh.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

44% of school parties miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

46% of school parties miss the last sailing on Northgate to Saltmarsh.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Refund requests are down 10%, so the new policy is working.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Rival operators fill 26% more seats per sailing than we do.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Rival operators fill 32% more seats per sailing than we do.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

Ticket scans take 1.49 seconds on the Pier 4 to Gull Island gate.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Refund requests are down 53%, so the new policy is working.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Ticket scans take 1.34 seconds on the Old Quay to Heron Point gate.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Queue time at the Pier 4 to Gull Island kiosk rose 58% after the timetable change.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Refund requests are down 18%, so the new policy is working.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Rival operators fill 17% more seats per sailing than we do.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Part 2: Customer needs

School parties need to change a ticket without calling anyone.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Freight clerks need to board the Northgate to Saltmarsh ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Commuters need to board the Old Quay to Heron Point ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

School parties need to change a ticket without calling anyone.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

School parties want to know whether the Old Quay to Heron Point sailing is delayed before leaving home.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Commuters need to board the Old Quay to Heron Point ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Commuters need a live-map screen.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Freight clerks need to board the Northgate to Saltmarsh ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Day visitors need to board the Pier 4 to Gull Island ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Part 2: Target customers

The segment we are building for is island residents who cross more than twice a week.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Our target customers are adults aged 26 to 47 who travel by ferry.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

Part 2: Stories

As a freight clerks traveller, I want to be told of a delay so that I can rebook.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

As a ticket inspector, I want to scan a code so that I can confirm a booking quickly.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

As a ticket inspector, I want to scan a code so that I can confirm a booking quickly.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

As a school parties traveller, I want to be told of a delay so that I can rebook.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

As a day visitors traveller, I want to be told of a delay so that I can rebook.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

As a ticket inspector, I want to scan a code so that I can confirm a booking quickly.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

As an operator, I want to export sailings so that finance can reconcile them.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Part 2: Constraints and obligations

The service must meet the Maritime Passenger Records Act, section 12.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Passenger names must be retained for seven years under the operator's licence condition 7.3.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

The service must meet the Maritime Passenger Records Act, section 12.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Part 2: Dependencies

Sam Okoro on the payments gateway team will confirm the schedule feed by June.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

We rely on the port authority's berth API for berth availability.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Sam Okoro on the port authority's berth API will confirm the schedule feed by June.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Part 2: Outlook

Launching a QR ticket wallet will double repeat bookings within a year.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

Launching a fare calculator widget will double repeat bookings within a year.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Once live, a seat picker will cut support calls by 14%.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Part 3: Background and evidence

Ticket scans take 1.41 seconds on the Northgate to Saltmarsh gate.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 19% after the timetable change.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

The Pier 4 to Gull Island service carried 5600 passengers last month.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

The Northgate to Saltmarsh service carried 5800 passengers last month.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

The Northgate to Saltmarsh service carried 6100 passengers last month.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

The Northgate to Saltmarsh service carried 6500 passengers last month.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Rival operators fill 25% more seats per sailing than we do.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Rival operators fill 34% more seats per sailing than we do.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Rival operators fill 39% more seats per sailing than we do.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Rival operators fill 46% more seats per sailing than we do.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Refund requests are down 48%, so the new policy is working.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Ticket scans take 1.26 seconds on the Northgate to Saltmarsh gate.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

47% of day visitors miss the last sailing on Northgate to Saltmarsh.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

68% of school parties miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Rival operators fill 18% more seats per sailing than we do.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Queue time at the Pier 4 to Gull Island kiosk rose 48% after the timetable change.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

The Northgate to Saltmarsh service carried 6000 passengers last month.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

40% of commuters miss the last sailing on Northgate to Saltmarsh.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Rival operators fill 40% more seats per sailing than we do.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 19% after the timetable change.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

Rival operators fill 63% more seats per sailing than we do.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

7% of school parties miss the last sailing on Old Quay to Heron Point.

Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

67% of freight clerks miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

41% of day visitors miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Queue time at the Old Quay to Heron Point kiosk rose 24% after the timetable change.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

11% of commuters miss the last sailing on Pier 4 to Gull Island.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

Refund requests are down 48%, so the new policy is working.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

52% of school parties miss the last sailing on Northgate to Saltmarsh.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

The Old Quay to Heron Point service carried 5800 passengers last month.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Queue time at the Northgate to Saltmarsh kiosk rose 20% after the timetable change.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Part 3: Customer needs

School parties need to board the Old Quay to Heron Point ferry without queueing at the kiosk.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

School parties need a QR ticket wallet.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

School parties need a QR ticket wallet.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Island residents need a live-map screen.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

School parties want to know whether the Pier 4 to Gull Island sailing is delayed before leaving home.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

School parties need to change a ticket without calling anyone.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

School parties want a refund within a day of cancelling.

The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Freight clerks want a refund within a day of cancelling.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item.

Day visitors want a refund within a day of cancelling.

The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

Part 3: Target customers

The segment we are building for is island residents who cross more than twice a week.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Our target customers are adults aged 36 to 64 who travel by ferry.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.

Part 3: Stories

As a day visitors traveller, I want to buy a return ticket for Northgate to Saltmarsh so that I can plan one trip.

Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

As a day visitors traveller, I want to buy a return ticket for Northgate to Saltmarsh so that I can plan one trip.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review.

As an operator, I want to export sailings so that finance can reconcile them.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

As a ticket inspector, I want to scan a code so that I can confirm a booking quickly.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan.

As a freight clerks traveller, I want to buy a return ticket for Northgate to Saltmarsh so that I can plan one trip.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here.

As a commuters traveller, I want to be told of a delay so that I can rebook.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

As a ticket inspector, I want to scan a code so that I can confirm a booking quickly.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Part 3: Constraints and obligations

The service must meet the Maritime Passenger Records Act, section 12.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

Tickets should feel instant.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section.

Passenger names must be retained for seven years under the operator's licence condition 7.3.

Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Part 3: Dependencies

We rely on the harbour CCTV vendor for berth availability.

The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. The numbering of items follows the order in which they were agreed, not their priority.

Sam Okoro on the payments gateway team will confirm the schedule feed by June.

Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Terminology follows the glossary in the appendix, and abbreviations are expanded on first use.

Delivery depends on the payments gateway team, with no named owner yet.

Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Diagrams referenced in this part are kept with the design files and are not reproduced here. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Part 3: Outlook

Once live, a seat picker will cut support calls by 52%.

Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor.

Once live, a live-map screen will cut support calls by 47%.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Where a paragraph refers to a table, the table appears at the end of the section. Earlier drafts of this part are archived and can be requested from the editor. The operations team meets on Thursdays and keeps notes with the release plan. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting.

Once live, a seat picker will cut support calls by 64%.

This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. This section records the working assumptions of the product group and is revised before each review. Reviewers are asked to read the whole part before commenting on any single item. The group reviews this document again after each quarterly planning meeting. Open questions are tracked in the shared log and are reviewed at the start of each planning cycle.